

Percussion CM1 in the Cloud

Percussion's marketer-friendly content management system is now available as a fully hosted and managed software-as-a-service package.

Marketers don't want to worry about servers, code, or software updates. They want to be assured that their websites never go down, so they can focus on content creation and effectiveness.

Percussion now offers its award-winning, easy-to-use web content management system as a service (SaaS) option, allowing customers to start developing their website fast without the need for extensive technical resources to get their content management system and website live.

Traditionally, a content management system is either installed on a server on site at your organization, or hosted by a third party. Someone still has to take on the responsibility for managing the server, setting up publishing, and maintaining the health and security of the website.

Offered as an annual subscription, our cloud option empowers marketers to prioritize what they do best, choosing CM1 in the Cloud allows you to just log in and manage content without worrying about the technical aspects of keeping your website running.

Built on Amazon Web Services for Speed and Security

There is no need to purchase hardware or license any software, and the Amazon Web Services (AWS) infrastructure provides the best web service currently available anywhere.

Percussion's cloud offering has been designed from the ground up for direct integration with Amazon S3 web services, leveraging the speed, security, stability, and scalability it provides. The cloud version of Percussion CMS is not recommended for intranet websites. Not sure if this applies to you? Contact us with any questions.
